MAYOR HARRISON'S ANSWER

To a Chicago Clergyman's Letter.

The address of welcome of Mayor Harrison to the National Liquor Dealers and Manufacturers' Conference assembled at Chicago on the 24th of May drew forth the wrath and usual denunciation from portions of the clergy of Chicago.

One Rev. Watson Thacher addressed Mayor Harrison a letter, the full substance of which is embodied in the Mayor's answer below:

CHICAGO, May 26, 1882.

MR. W. THACHER—My Dear Sir: I have just received an earnest letter signed by W. Thacher severely animadverting upon a speech made by me to the brewers.

You (Mr. Thacher) say you are shocked by my statement that the brewers' interest was one of the most important ones in the country. Made this statement when I was speaking to a lot of business men, meeting together as a business organization, and while dwelling upon the vast capital employed by this organization and the vast revenue it paid to the Government. I made no allusion to it as a social organization, no allusion whatever to it as a moral or immoral organization. The connection with other things I said showed that I spoke of the organization purely as a material and financial one.

You say that you are shocked by my saying that if I believed the brewers were trying to make drunkards I would be the last man to welcome them. You then go on and ask me many questions as to the effects of liquor, of its production of crime, and ask me if I don't know these to be facts. True, drunkenness is the cause of much crime; true, the distiller and the brewer make the article from which drunkenness springs, but that does not prove that prohibitory laws would stop the crime. And if you carefully read the statistics from States where there is prohibition you will find that I am right. I am as earnest in trying to do good to the people as you are. I despise a drunkard and hate drunkenness, and so stated to the Brewers' Association. But when I talk, I talk as a freeman, express my sentiments boldly, and ask a man to think as seems to him best. I find that the vast majority of mankind use stimulants in some form or other, and yet the vast majority of mankind are sober. A comparative few—I use the word comparative in connection with the vast majority—a comparative few only are drunkards.

Now the bulk of the world, and I am one of those, can use stimulants and yet be Christian men. Is the fact that a few who are weak, and cannot drink without making beasts of themselves, a reason why I and the vast majority who do use what I believe to be given me by God for my good—certainly for my pleasure, and not for my immediate harm, and not for the harm of the great mass of humanity—are we to be denied the right to use these because a few men cannot drink and keep sober? I so stated in my speech, but I earnestly urged that convention to do what was best not only for their own interest, but what was best for the sobriety of the world.

I do not believe it is the manufacturing of liquor that does the harm, nor did these men believe it. It is the intemperate use of it by those who get drunk. You may pass all the prohibitory laws that the statute books can contain, and yet you will not stop drunkenness, Maine and Massachusetts are a proof of this fact.

My dear sir, our cities are filled with brothels and houses of prostitution. Why? Because the Creator created woman as He did and gave men passions for the benefit of men. These passions are prostituted and cause vice. Are we to condemn the Creator for endowing men with passions because his weak creatures abuse those passions? God gave us passions for use and not for abuse. God gave us also His good gifts, and I class among them stimulants, for our use and not for our abuse. Laws cannot make us use them well. It is proper preaching in the pulpit, the fire side, the lyceum and social influence that will stop drunkenness, not prohibitory law. Why do thieves steal and robbers often kill? It is because they are trying to appropriate to themselves that which the thrifty and the industrious save and accumulate by their thrift and industry. Industry causes accumulation. Accumulation is property. Property is a temptation to the thief. Why do you not preach sermons against accumulation, and tell the people not to be economical; as, being so, they offer temptation to the thief and the robber?

God paints the roses upon women's cheek. She is a delight to me as well as to you, my reverend sir, and is to many other preachers, but her beauty is the cause of a great deal of crime in the world. Was our Creator to blame for putting the roses there and making her a blessing in the sight of man?

You pray, my dear sir, that God may have mercy on me and may forgive me. Eighteen hundred years ago a Pharisee uttered much the same expression and thanked God he was not as other men are. Yet my recollection is that our Savior did not go among the Pharisees for his followers, but went down in despised Galilee and took fishermen and poor men. If He came down now to look up twelve men to be his followers He would not go among those who, like yourself, take a grabbed statement from a newspaper and write a letter which is a slander upon Chicago's Mayor.

Very respectfully yours,

CARTER H. HARRISON.

At the annual meeting of the New York and Brooklyn Association of Congregational churches, Tuesday, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher delivered an address, during which he took occasion to announce his withdrawal from the membership of the Association. He delivered an elaborate exposition of his beliefs respecting the doctrines of the Bible and Christianity, and assigned as a reason for withdrawing from the Association that as a Christian gentleman he could not afford to lay on another the responsibility of his views. He could not afford, especially, to put the Association in such a position that they were obliged to defend him.
